Zhuhai Overview

Zhuhai, one of the earliest Special Economic Zones (SEZs) in China, is located in the center of the Guangdong-Hong Kong-Macao Greater Bay Area (the Greater Bay Area, GBA). Situated 120 km south of Guangzhou, it is connected to Hong Kong in the east and to Macao in the south, serving as an important link between the Chinese Mainland and the two Special Administrative Regions (SARs). Zhuhai has a land area of 1,725 km² and a permanent resident population of 2.51 million.

Covering a vast marine area of 9,348 square kilometers and 262 islands, Zhuhai, since the commissioning of the Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge (HZMB), has become the only city in China that is connected to Hong Kong and Macao by road and bridge. Zhuhai Airport operates flights to 90 cities all over the country. Aided by the "Fly-Via-Zhuhai-HK" passenger link initiative, travelers can reach Hong Kong Airport through the HZMB checkpoint without going through Hong Kong's immigration procedures. Zhuhai can also be accessed through high-speed trains from 64 cities across the country. Zhuhai Gaolan Port is the only deep-water harbor with good natural conditions and over 10,000-tonnage berths on the west bank of the Pearl River Estuary, connected to 25 countries and regions all over the globe. Among the ten national Category-I checkpoints in the city, the HZMB Port is the country's only open checkpoint that concurrently operates 'first line' border clearance with Hong Kong and Macao, enabling Hong Kong and Macao vehicles to travel to/from the Chinese mainland, and offering checkpoint service 24/7. With 5-minute access to Macao, 15 minutes to Macao International Airport, 40 minutes to Hong Kong International Airport, and 75 minutes to Hong Kong Kwai Chung Container Terminal, Zhuhai is connected to the world through well-established transportation network.

Zhuhai has established trade relations with over 220 countries and regions, with total import and export value exceeding 290 billion yuan, ranking 6th in Guangdong Province and making it one of the top 10 players among China's top 100 foreign trade cities. Over 50 Fortune Global 500 enterprises have invested and started business in Zhuhai. The local GDP scored 447.906 billion yuan (about USD 62.9 billion) in 2024, with the GDP per capita ranking 15th in China and second in Guangdong Province. It is the most ideal destination for businesses to seize the opportunities arising from the construction of the GBA and benefit from the dividends of its development.
